

Leadership in a Changing Workplace

A curated 90-day workplace program helping leaders build trust, lead through change, and create stronger accountability

This program addresses the five things that actually determine whether a leader succeeds in today's workplace. We start with AI — not the technology itself, but how leaders integrate human skills alongside it. We look at remote and hybrid leadership — how you maintain trust and morale when you're not in the room together. We explore empathy-led leadership through neuroscience — why valuing people isn't soft, it's strategic. We go deep on trust and how leaders navigate the harder dynamics of team relationships and negotiation. And we get practical with delegation — how leaders stop carrying everything themselves and build real accountability. Then we bring the room together to talk through what it all means for this organization specifically.

The Six-Session Program

1. People-Centric Leadership in the Time of AI	TEDx speaker and international leadership speaker	Explore how to integrate human skills with AI to navigate challenges and opportunities.
2. Lead When You're Not in the Room	Best-selling author, coach and founder of Influence Academy	When Leaders can't see their people: How to build trust, respect + loyalty, through relationships & communication.
3. Heart-Centered Leadership	Best-selling author, professional speaker and executive coach	Why valuing people outperforms every other business strategy.
4. Negotiation Strategies for Building Team Trust	Harvard Fellow Negotiation expert, CEO & Founder	Strategies to stay proactive, navigate disagreements productively, and engage outside support when needed.
5. The Art of Delegating Like a Leader	Built and sold a successful consulting company	Move beyond hidden expectations. Build collaborative team agreements.
6. Putting It All Together. Your Team's Next Move	WELLOGA founder, published author and international speaker	Bring the key ideas together and explore how they apply specifically to your organization.
